

Concept Note:

This site redesign was for a local organization by the name 'Keeping Sandy Springs North Fulton Beautiful.' There were a few problems presented that needed to be addressed, such as information architecture/hierarchy. This site is meant to inform about what the organization does, how to get involved, and when certain events take place.

The splash page is an element that the original KSSNFB site did not feature. I implemented the splash page in efforts to produce a simple, mood-setting and inviting introduction to the site. The coloration of the site as a whole consists of earthy tones to keep consistent with the subject matter while almost providing ample contrast among other colors. Organization on the navigation was redone by moving certain pages to sub-navigation pages because this condensed the global navigation as well as placed like subjects together in the navigation structure.
